MARIE CURIE

Marie Curie provides high quality nursing, totally free, to give those who are terminally ill the choice to be at home supported by their families.

WHAT DO MARIE CURIE NURSES DO?

We make it possible for people who are seriously ill with any terminal illnesses to choose to stay in the comfort of their home at the end of their life, rather than go into hospital.

"If I hadn't been able to look after John, he would have had no option but to go into hospital. Through the night, when his wife needed rest, I was there."

We offer expert nursing care and emotional support. We give families the support they need during the day or through the night to reduce stress and anxiety.

For more information on how you can support the vital work of Marie Curie in Cornwall call the Cornwall Fundraising office on 01872 260500.

£20 pays for one hour of nursing care

We have 26 Marie Curie nurses working in the homes of terminally ill patients right here in Cornwall - but we need more.

In one year we cared for 291 patients and provided 18,420 hours of hands on nursing care in the county.

The Marie Curie Nursing Service is free of charge to patients and their families and is available day or night, 365 days a year.

We continue to campaign for more people to be given this end of life choice.

Care and support through terminal illness

Established in 2008 the biennial Diamond Balls have raised over £20,000 to help individuals and families in Cornwall who are living with a terminal illness. Every hour of every day the charity makes a real difference to people's lives and in turn how they wish to die.

Community fundraising groups play a vital role in helping Marie Curie to raise funds and promote awareness. We welcome new members to join us.
